Chevier Tells Convention:

Big Business Can't Continue Big Profits

Capital must learn to get along with a smaller share of the national income and big business must realize that it can no longer expect the huge profits that followed World War I and curb its greed. Hon. Lionel Chevier, K.C. federal minister of transport, told 400 persons attending a banquet at the Alberta Provincial Liberal convention in the Donald Hotel Tuesday night. Small business must be encouraged, however, and the principle of free enterprise re-

The banquet was in connection with the first convention of provincial Liberals since 1937.

In an address in which the 46-year-old cabinet minister declared that the Liberal party was the only party in Canada that has successfully met the stern challenge of a changing world, Chevier urged the delegates attending the convention to select a leader for the party in Alberta, a leader devoted to the service of the people of Alberta.

"If this is done I am convinced the Liberal party will be the only party in Canada that will be able to carry out its program," he said.

The Liberal party was the first to proclaim that the party had passed away, the speaker said, and there is "one school of thought and one only, can meet the challenge of the day, and that is Liberalism."

"Today the world is witnessing a trend toward international co-operation. To avoid the risks of the world, we must be able to get along with the world."

See Evidence Wildcat Strikes Breaking Up

PITTSBURGH, June 25.—(AP)—Nearly half of the 400,000 soft coal miners in the United States were idle today in protest against passage of what they termed the "slave-labor bill" but there was some evidence the wildcat walkouts were breaking up. The walkout had broken up 176,000 miners in 10 states last night.

MINERS' PRODUCTION cuts were announced in the steel industry. The Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp. said it has shut down the equivalent of 176,000 miners in 10 states last night.

But Britain Said Prepared to Go Ahead

Forecast Russian Rejection of Marshall Plan If It Should Carry Anti-Communist Strings

Oil Production Figures Released

Pravda said today that the Marshall plan would be rejected by all self-respecting European nations if it carried anti-Communist strings, but Britain indicated her readiness to go ahead without Soviet participation.

A Pravda editorial broadcast by the Moscow radio said the failure of the Marshall plan would be a foregone conclusion if the American aid offer was coupled with the Greek-Turkish program.

Thirteen Drills Going Down

From Battle Lake, 50 miles south-west of Edmonton to Paddle River, as far to the north-west, including the Leduc sector, thirteen wells are being drilled in the quest for oil. And every day or so comes news of another one spudded-in somewhere in this broad stretch of country. Obviously, Edmonton is at the centre of the most extensive area in all Canada where boring operations are being carried on.

These operations are in most instances undertaken by large and well-established oil companies, with vast capital, staffs of geologists and experienced technicians and of course the most modern and efficient equipment. With all Canada to choose from, the experts have picked out this district as the most promising, and their judgment is being backed by an investment which is already enormous and must by the end of the year run into many millions of dollars.

Short of the discovery of oil in many parts of this territory comparable to the find in the Leduc field, it is hard to argue more strongly that this city is located in what will become the great oil-producing field of the Dominion. And the exploratory activities are such that, unless the experts are entirely wrong, this outcome cannot be long delayed.

The Consumer's Reaction

B.C. loggers are reported to have voted better than two-to-one to go on strike unless they get 20 cents an hour increase in pay. Negotiations are still in progress and the threatened strike may not occur, though as the arguing has been going on for many weeks this possibility is not to be discounted.

If the reaction of prairie consumers means anything to them, the operators and loggers had better consider their difference and keep supplies moving into this market. Building activity in prairie centres is tending to slow down under the braking power of fantastic prices for lumber and other materials. So far as house-building is concerned, action is not pretty well at a standstill. The completion of projects already under way. New enterprises are being embarked upon in any large scale, and cutting down supplies of B.C. lumber would do nothing to bring new ones on the agenda.

It may or may not be that the B.C. millmen could afford to pay the loggers the higher wages they want. Prairie people cannot afford to buy houses at the present scale of materials, especially if lumber is so wealthy. If prairie demand is of any concern to B.C. producers, they had better keep supplies rolling this way and sell what they can while they can.

U.S. Labor Control

In the United States—

The Government is empowered to secure a court order forbidding any strike the effect of which would be disastrous to the national economy.

The "closed shop" is outlawed; Jurisdictional disputes and boycotts are forbidden;

Action may be taken in the courts against a labor union that breaks a contract;

Collective bargaining is denied to a labor organization which has a Communist officer;

Unions are forbidden to keep non-striking workers from their jobs by mass or violent picketing;

It is illegal to collect "excess or discriminatory" union dues and initiation fees.

These are main provisions in the control bill passed by the two Houses of Congress over the veto of President Truman.

The House of Representatives, and 68 to 29 in the Senate. In the House the majority was overwhelming. In the Senate it was well above the two-to-one ratio required.

What this may signify as to the outcome of the presidential elections next year is no business of outsiders, and is arguable. What is clear is that the voters last fall called for a new era of containment of the power of the labor unions. Whether Congress went too far is another question. That the newly-elected majority members moved in the direction their electors told them to move is not open to doubt.

Nor is there any doubt who caused this popular demand for restriction. More than any other man, the distinction falls to Mr. John L. Lewis. He shares it in generous measure with the leaders who shut down the steel mills, tied up the railways, stopped shipping, closed down automobile works.

The paralyzing effect of these tie-ups on industry and business reacted in a popular protest at the polling places. Enactment of restrictive legislation followed as a matter of obedience to the public demand.

Naturally the men who brought about this control law are holly denouncing it. They promise to test the legislation in the courts and to fight the supporting members on the hustings. There may even be outbreaks of "violence" which President Truman predicted, but this can be doubted.

Of course organized labor has rights. But so have the public. In the rank-and-file of organized labor it must be widely recognized that a nation will not submit to being deprived of essential supplies and services whenever a small minority of employees and still smaller minority of employers get de-locked on a question of wages, working hours or some other issue which could and should be settled without shutting-down the works.

The broad and positive effect of this legislative check to work stoppages should be to centre the attention of all parties concerned on the problem of keeping industry going and settling disputes by negotiation or arbitration.

Self-Help Is Vital

General Marshall's proposal that the United States finance the reconstruction of Europe seems to have caught on in the right quarters. Premier Ramadier promptly suggested the setting up of international committee to make a survey of the needs and the resources of the continent, or the western section of it; the idea being to ask for help from Washington only in so far as this may be necessary.

Mr. Bevin says he agrees with the French plan. France's continental neighbors can hardly afford to stand aloof if this plan is approved at Washington. Russia has agreed to at least discuss participation. The best feature of the French suggestion is that it places emphasis on self-help as the direct means to success in the reconstruction effort. Experience in Germany has shown how hopeless it is to lift a country out of distress and despair by outside leverage alone. A nation must build its own future by its own exertions. Outsiders can only help, and if they help too much they do more harm than good.

If the war-wrecked nations will count up their needs and their means, and ask only for so much assistance as they really require, the restoration job will get started in the way most likely to bring success—in fact about the only way that could do so.

Naturally the men who brought about this control law are holly denouncing it. They promise to test the legislation in the courts and to fight the supporting members on the hustings. There may even be outbreaks of "violence" which President Truman predicted, but this can be doubted.

Of course organized labor has rights. But so have the public. In the rank-and-file of organized labor it must be widely recognized that a nation will not submit to being deprived of essential supplies and services whenever a small minority of employees and still smaller minority of employers get de-locked on a question of wages, working hours or some other issue which could and should be settled without shutting-down the works.

The broad and positive effect of this legislative check to work stoppages should be to centre the attention of all parties concerned on the problem of keeping industry going and settling disputes by negotiation or arbitration.

Self-Help Is Vital

General Marshall's proposal that the United States finance the reconstruction of Europe seems to have caught on in the right quarters. Premier Ramadier promptly suggested the setting up of international committee to make a survey of the needs and the resources of the continent, or the western section of it; the idea being to ask for help from Washington only in so far as this may be necessary.

Mr. Bevin says he agrees with the French plan. France's continental neighbors can hardly afford to stand aloof if this plan is approved at Washington. Russia has agreed to at least discuss participation. The best feature of the French suggestion is that it places emphasis on self-help as the direct means to success in the reconstruction effort. Experience in Germany has shown how hopeless it is to lift a country out of distress and despair by outside leverage alone. A nation must build its own future by its own exertions. Outsiders can only help, and if they help too much they do more harm than good.

If the war-wrecked nations will count up their needs and their means, and ask only for so much assistance as they really require, the restoration job will get started in the way most likely to bring success—in fact about the only way that could do so.

Would Drop Means Test

Says Pension Rate Should Be Doubled

OTTAWA, June 25.—(CP)—Old age pensions should be "waxed as much" as that provided in the present bill to increase the basic payment by $5 to $30 a month, John Blackmore (SC-Lethbridge) said last night in the Commons.

RESUMING DEBATE on second reading of the legislation, he said he thought the bill stood as a "condemnation" of the financial system upon which the increase was based. It was a system of robbing Peter to pay Paul.

Some pensioners were suffering great privations on their pitiful pensions. The increased cost of living had made their situations pathetic. Some of the correspondence he had had from them would "make the angels weep."

HE MOVED that the bill be referred back to the government for consideration of reduction of the age minimum from 70 to at least 65 years, for an increase of the $30 pensions to at least $50 a month and for abolition of the means test.

The house leader, Veterans Minister Mackenzie, objected that since the amendment involved an expenditure of public money it could not be moved by a private member. Anthony Hynka (SC-Vegreville) said the government was seeking to shift a large part of the responsibility for pensions on to the provinces. There were quotations from a 1931 speech in which Prime Minister Mackenzie King had said:

Latest in Hats Has Neon Sign

ATLANTA, Ga., June 25.—(AP)—Hats in hats—a man, that is—when Mrs. H. R. Burts showed up with her tricyc number at the Atlanta baseball park it almost broke up the ball game. The hat not only looked like a neon sign, it was one. Withered, faded, and white hair, Mrs. Burts flashed it on and off, coincident with the joy over spectacular play of the Atlanta Cracker team.

HIGH PRAIRIE, June 25.—Members from three church congregations, Big Meadows, Enilda and High Prairie, met in the Enilda Hall recently for a farewell gathering in honor of the Rev. A. J. Norquay, who is leaving to attend college in the East.

A lunch was served, with the church boards from each district seated at the head table. Two boy scout leaders were also present. John Reynolds, High Prairie, acted as toastmaster, and presented Mr. Norquay with a certificate. The Rev. A. J. Norquay, who is leaving to attend college in the East, was presented with a certificate by the church boards.

Over UN Legislation
OTTAWA, June 25.—(CP)—A Commons' wrangle swirled about the stolid figure of Norman Jacques (SC-Wetaskiwin) yesterday as the house beat down an effort to kill a bill that would give the government power to carry out Canada's obligations to back non-military sanctions requested by the security council of the United Nations.

Stalin Declines Part in Ceremony
LAKE SUCCESS, June 25.—(AP)—The United Nations announced last night that Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet deputy foreign minister, had declined to speak at a world charter day broadcast Thursday in place of Generalissimo Stalin, who declined an invitation to participate.

Eisenhower Backs U.S. Military Plan
WASHINGTON, June 25.—(AP)—Gen. Eisenhower, the man who led victorious Allied armies in Europe during the Second World War, disclosed yesterday that he had accepted the presidency of Columbia University, New York effective next year. He succeeds President Harry Truman who retired in 1945 and now is Columbia's president emeritus. Speculation over Eisenhower's successor as United States Army chief-of-staff, centered momentarily on Gen. Omar Bradley, 54, chief of the United States' top soldiers, who has been veterans' administrator since Aug.

Land Taxes Too High

Calls for Amendment
Alta. Education Levy

Some municipalities in Alberta are paying 84 per cent of the costs of education, with the provincial government contributing only 16 per cent, J. M. Wheatley of Chancellors, told some provincial Liberal party members Tuesday afternoon.

MR. WHEATLEY is bringing an amendment to a resolution dealing with education that may be incorporated into the provincial Liberal platform. The resolution provides for adequate educational opportunities for the citizens of the province as an investment in good citizenship and democracy and one from which the community and individual alike derive moral, social and economic benefit, the program to provide:

- (1) Opportunity for all citizens whether rural or urban.
- (2) Adequate provision for agricultural, vocational, university and adult education fashioned to assist individuals of all ages in the development of their talents within the measure of their own ability.
- (3) Such financial assistance as is necessary to enable education to fulfill its proper function in each community.

To the last paragraph Mr. Wheatley added the words "and thereby relieve the heavy burden of taxation on the land."

SPEAKING to his amendment the delegate from Chancellors said:

"The government of Alberta is now making $10,000,000 annually out of whisky and wine taxes. The total revenue of the province is the times what it is in the development of the province."

"Yet the farmers are all worried about the heavy cost of education reflected in the land taxes. Land taxes are in many cases the only source of revenue for municipalities. Some measure of relief must be found to ease the burden for education."

J. F. Shaker of Hanna wanted the convention to take up the resolution, pledging a future Liberal government to pay 50 per cent of the cost of education throughout the province.

AFTER CONSIDERABLE discussion Mr. Wheatley decided to withdraw his amendment and make the subject of a separate resolution that will be dealt with later in the convention.

The resolution itself was passed without dissent.

The resolution was one of several approved at the business session of the convention Tuesday afternoon.

Among the more important resolutions approved were one dealing with the question of freight rates, and another pledging that Alberta suffers from the highest freight rates in Canada, being subject to the heaviest impost of the high freight rates on wheat and other commodities, and pledging the Liberal government to pay 50 per cent of the cost of education throughout the province.

The convention resolved that the Liberal government should introduce by statute into the Canadian railway rates structure the principle of the "Spokane rate case" as it is known in the U.S.A., by providing that no railway may make a greater charge for a freight shipment to or from an interior point than it makes for a longer haul over the same line in the same direction to or from a coastal point.

Another resolution dealt with the alleviation of drought conditions and was presented by the Hand Hills Livestock Association, as follows:

"WHEREAS drought has caused

General Inquiry
Rail Rates Asked

Stating there was ample evidence that Alberta was being unfairly and oppressively discriminated against in the present rate structure, S. E. McCreary, chairman of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce transportation committee, asked that the present freight rate inquiry be converted into a general inquiry into the present rate structure.

He made this submission at the afternoon session of the Board of Transportation Commissioners holding regional meetings at the University of Alberta, in support of his contention that the present rate structure should be changed, referred to a sub-committee of the Board of Transportation Commissioners to study the present rate structure and to report back to the Board of Transportation Commissioners at the next meeting.

He said that the subject matter of the United States case was almost similar to that before the commissioners, adding that the American case was less extreme than the present case of Alberta.

Mr. Smith contended that changing the freight rate structure was a matter of the railroads, not the government, and that the railroads should be given the right to change the rate structure, money and accomplish what was desired.

Chief Commissioner A. C. Cross, K.C., said that while the United States case was a precedent, it was not binding on the commission, it held the principle that in the present rail rates.

Mr. Smith submitted that if the railroads were to be increased that consideration must be given to the removal of the discrimination against Alberta that prevails in the present rail rates.

Freight Increase
Would Aid Trucks

Truck competition in Alberta is growing steadily, and will increase rapidly if the proposed freight increase asked for by the railways is granted. A. A. Cameron, Lebridge, told members of the Board of Transportation Commissioners Tuesday afternoon that the proposed freight increase would aid trucks.

He said this competition was extending outside the province boundaries, and soon would be operating in the province.

Need Study Impact
Freight Rate Boost

Regard must be had to the impact the proposed 30-per-cent freight rate increase asked by Canadian railways would have upon other branches of the Canadian economy, and particularly that of western agriculture, and also to the extent to which the proposed increases will accentuate the present unfair discrimination in the application of freight tariffs against Alberta, A.
